Leroy Ellgass Valedictorian

Leroy Ellgass

Rev. Edward A. Maziarz, C.P.P.S., academic dean, announced recently that Leroy Ellgass has been named valedictorian of this semester's graduating class. Ellgass is from Chicago, Ill., where he attended Weber high school before coming to St. Joe's. In college he majored in accounting and minored in economics.

Last year he was given membership in Delta Epsilon Sigma, the St. Joseph chapter of the National Catholic Honor Society. Ellgass has also received many other academic honors. This year he was presented with the Indiana Association of Certified Public Accountants' Award, and also received a scholarship to attend the University of Michigan where he will study for his M.B.A. degree in accounting. Leroy plans, after graduate school, to try for a C.P.A. certificate and work in the field of public accounting.

In addition to his scholastic accomplishments, Leroy has been an active member of both the Commerce club and the Chicago club. He was also a member of the basketball squad in his freshman and sophomore years.

Brass, Bottles Highlight SJ Band's Pop Concert

by Glenn Clausen

A small, but enthusiastic audience filled the auditorium with applause for the St. Joseph's college band under the direction of Mr. Adam P. Lesinsky on Wednesday, May 20.

The concert opened with the band playing selections from George Gershwin, then swinging down Latin America way with a Rumba beat. James Deegan was featured in a vocal solo of "Some Enchanted Evening," and the chorus from "Desert Song."

Ed Veome, James Tegtmeyer, Paul Ross, Fred Weber, and Ken Ahler, picked up their trombones and blew out the melody of "Lassus Trombones" before the entire band gave an excellent rendition of "Victory at Sea," to wind up the first half of the program.

After a short intermission, the band blasted into the frolicking "Helena Polka," followed by Mr. Lesinsky's original arrangements for the newest addition to St. Joseph's musical department, the Fife, Bottle and Jug band. The "Poetical Peanuts Overture" and a medley of

Frank McHale To Speak At Commencement

Mr. Frank M. McHale will deliver the baccalaureate address at St. Joseph's commencement exercises on Sunday, June 7. Mr. McHale and Mr. James B. McCahey will also receive honorary degrees from the college. Both men are on the college's Board of Lay Trustees and are outstanding Catholic laymen.

Mr. McHale, one of the most prominent corporation lawyers in Indiana, is the senior member of the Indianapolis law firm of McHale, Cook, Welch and McKinney. He has long been associated with the Democratic party and from 1937 to 1952, he held the position of national party chairman. At present, he is still active in democratic circles. St. Joseph's is presenting him with an honorary degree in recognition of his long and valuable service to the college as a member of the lay Board for the last 10 years.

Mr. McCahey, who is also to receive an honorary degree, is a well-known Chicago businessman and a past president of the Board of Education of the City of Chicago and a member of the Metropolitan Fair and Exposition Authority of that city. Like Mr. McHale, Mr. McCahey is on the college's Board of Lay Trustees and has long contributed his services to the growth of St. Joseph's. Mr. McCahey is one of the nation's outstanding Catholic laymen. He is one of the few Americans to be honored as a Knight of St. Gregory.

Mark Doorley Chosen As May 'Man of the Month'

Chosen as the last Man of the Month for the 1958-59 school year is Mark Doorley, senior, who, during May, served as co-chairman of Parents' Day and also as co-chairman of a Student Council committee to edit the printing of a student directory.

Doorley hails from Wapakoneta, O., and has made himself known around campus with his duties as a student prefect for three years. As co-chairman of the Parents' Day committee along with Joe Gurgone, Doorley was instrumental in planning the day, in publicizing it, and in decorating for the event on the campus.

As co-chairman of the Directory committee, it has been his duty to gather the names of all students and their addresses and to submit these to a printing concern for publication. The directory will be out in the near future.

Upon his election to the presidency of the Vets' club in the spring of 1958, Doorley was chosen from among all club presidents to serve as inter-club chairman, a voting position on the Student Council. In this position Doorley states that he has tried to "make something substantial out of his office and to coordinate clubs, thus relieving the independence which plagues the clubs on campus." He has also tried, as one of his main functions, to bring more club members to the meetings of the Student Council.

After graduating from St. Joseph's high school in Wapakoneta, Doorley worked on a farm for two years and then served in the U. S. army from December, 1953 to 1955. He is majoring in economics at St. Joe and minoring in philosophy.

11 Seniors Get Grad Aid

Ten St. Joseph's seniors have been granted assistantships for study at graduate school and one has been granted a fellowship, Fr. Edward A. Maziarz announced Monday.

Peter Warner, a chemistry major, has received a fellowship which will allow him to study chemistry at the University of Detroit.

Receiving the assistantships are: Larry Herber, geology, New Mexico School of Mines; James Niemeyer, geology, Purdue university; Chuck Holmes, geology, Florida State; Cletus Habing, geology, Purdue university; Leo Kominek, biology, University of Illinois; Ray Tennant, biology, University of Notre Dame; Richard P. Sutter, biology, Ohio State university; Al Mueller, chemistry, Michigan State university; Leroy Ellgass, accounting, University of Michigan; and James Egan, economics, Purdue university.

Other students attending grad school without assistantships or fellowships are: Dave Bauer, economics, Fordham; Howard Dewes, economics, Marquette university; Bob Hoffswell, mathematics, University of Illinois; and in geology—Paul Jurik, Bob Gontko, and Ed Grayczyk, Texas A. & M.; James Hays and Art Lapadat, University of Kansas; Michael Tierney, University of Arizona; and John Van DerLey, Iowa State university.

In the field of education, 33 students will go from their practice teaching into professional teaching positions. Also, three students will enter med school next fall. They are Gerald E. Byrne, John Neff and Wayne Kassel, all going to St. Louis university.

at St. Joe include membership in the Vets' club for four years and the Commerce club for three years. During the past two school years he has also served as circulation manager for Stuff, which entailed the addressing and mailing of copies of the paper every issue to all advertisers and subscribers.

As to his future, Doorley has nothing definite planned yet, but does hope to go into the field of general business.

Frosh Elect

Tom Van Osdol

Tom Van Osdol swept to an overwhelming victory in the sophomore class elections last Monday night. He more than tripled the individual totals of either of his opponents, Vic Pariso or Matt Walsh, thus becoming president of next year's sophomores. All four offices were decided in a run-off after none of the candidates received a majority of the votes last Thursday.

Van Osdol's fellow officers will be John Lulewicz, vice-president, who won a close race with Bill Kennedy for the office, Ray Trapp, secretary, and George Marchal, treasurer. The freshman class made a fine showing at the polls. Out of a total of 339 freshmen, not including seminarians, 305 voted in the election, or 89.9 per cent.

Of the 305 ballots cast for president, Van Osdol collected 190, or 62.7 per cent for a one-sided victory. Pariso received 61 votes and Walsh got 53. One ballot contained no vote for this office.

Lulewicz beat out Kennedy by a slight margin, 134-129. Tom Stefaniak received 41 votes in the vice-presidential race and two ballots were blank. Ray Trapp won handily over Bob Dougherty for secretary, 207 votes to 94, with five blank ballots. In the race for treasurer, another close one, George Marchal collected 129 votes to 93 for Jim Toepp and 86 for Bob Hadala. There were three blank ballots.

Outline Duties of Moderator To End Internal Riffs in Clubs

Internal riffs among members of a club on campus can have nothing but evil effects for the whole club and especially those members concerned, but riffs between the members and the moderator are even worse. They can do nothing but serve to disunite the club and throw a virtual "monkey-wrench" into its activities.

An event corresponding to this latter type of disagreement, though, has occurred during the last two weeks and all possible efforts should be made to correct the difficulties, lest the club itself be hurt.

What we are referring to is the flare-up at the last meeting of one of the most active clubs on campus over the use of the club finances and the resulting actions taken by personalities of this club.

Motions on the floor at the meeting showed a desire by the club to purchase a gift for the outgoing members inscribed with their names, the club emblem and the school emblem. Such a gift was to serve as a remembrance of the club and the school to these members who would be scattered across the county after leaving St. Joe.

Now the moderator, disagreeing with this use of club finances, saw fit, and surely within his rights and duties, to voice his opinion, and this he did. But the motion was nonetheless passed by a simple majority over his dissent.

At this point discussion should have been concluded and the club should have been able to purchase the desired gift out of its finances. But this was impossible. Before the treasurer could get to the college bank to withdraw the funds, the account was closed by the dissenting moderator.

Now the question comes up—Does a club moderator have power to do such a thing as this, and, if so, doesn't such power take away any form of independence which the club might have? We would answer no and yes respectively.

Looking at the constitution of this club and also at those of a greater majority of the organizations on campus, very little definition of the moderator's powers can be found. All that has been put down in black and white is a vague duty of the moderator being present at all meetings in an "advisory" capacity.

No mention is made of the exact powers of the moderator as an advisor, nor is any mention made as to what he should advise.

Stipulations such as these have a definite place in the articles of each constitution and should be placed there, as an amendment, in as much detail as the club sees fit to avoid circumstances similar to what has happened recently.

Complete definitions of the moderators' duties and powers should be listed numerically, in much the same order as the listing of the duties and powers of the officers. In this way, and only in this way, can the moderator, appointed by the college, work in harmony with the officers, appointed by the club members themselves.

In Retrospect: A Good Year; For the Future: Tradition

With the close of the Science building doors on June 3, and the opening of the vacation doors for colleges around the nation, one should sit back and survey the year ended and begin making plans for the next.

All in all, St. Joe's had an average year in sports and a better-than-average year academically. In football the Pumas finished with a winning 5-4 season and in basketball they did the same with a final 12-11 mark. Academically, the theme of the whole year seemed to be a raise in requirements, a revision in courses, and a betterment in teachers and professors.

Socially, St. Joseph's students are beginning to have functions of which they can be proud. This fact can be traced mainly to the thankless work of the Student Council dance committee and the individual dance committees who worked so hard to make their dances a success.

Looking into the future we see one need around the St. Joe campus, and that need is tradition. Tradition is an internal factor which cements the spirit of a school and without which the structure might fall.

Tradition, in itself, could be a good worthwhile concept to concern ourselves with for the school year 1959-60.

Integration of Coeds and Pumas Frowned Upon by St. Xavierites

(Editor's note: The following was recently printed in the Xavierite, the newspaper of St. Xavier college, Chicago, Ill. It was addressed to the editors of Stuff and printed on their editorial page.)

Dear Editor,

The April 1 edition of Stuff concerning an account of your plans to go coed next year having been brought to out attention, we wish to congratulate your college on its progress in education. We are confident that as a result of opening its doors to women, St. Joe's will make many advances.

We were able to interview Miss Kathy Sloan and Miss Nancy Landrith, SXC students mentioned in your paper as future transfers, about their planned move. In the interests of inter-collegiate harmony, we enclose a transcript of that interview.

Reporter: Miss Sloan, is it true that you aren't pleased about your transferring to St. Joe's?

Miss Sloan: Well, to be perfectly frank, I never had any intention of becoming a student there. When I signed the application blank, I was under the impression that I was registering for an inter-collegiate cribbage tournament. When I found out differently, it was too late.

Miss Landrith: As a matter of fact, she was duped! The same thing happened to me! I was on a St. Joe's trip and I thought I was signing a guest book. Now they won't let me out of it.

Reporter: Stuff claims that 109 Xavier girls have applied to St. Joe's, including 49 prospective seniors. That will leave exactly eight seniors on this campus. Would you like to comment on this?

Miss Sloan: The transferees probably hope to avoid difficult comprehensives.

Reporter: What do you think about the reducing rooms that are to be provided in the new women's dorm?

Miss Sloan: A necessity. Have you ever eaten at St. Joe's? Starch, nothing but starch.

Miss Landrith: All I know is that the Xavier population is going to increase tremendously second semester of next year when all the girls transfer back!

Reporter: Don't you believe the charm of St. Joe's will last?

Miss Landrith: Certainly not! A men's campus is fine for an occasional week-end, but whole months of staring at sweat shirts, wash pants, Pumas and balding heads will be just too much!

Reporter: Then we may expect you back in February?

Both: Yes, indeed! As soon as we can get away.

We hope that you will not allow this interview to discourage your noble efforts.

Reviews At Random

by Charles Faucher

The term modern art tends to evoke, in most of us, revulsion, or if nothing so sophisticated as this, then some sort of completely unintelligible smear, a vague geometric design, a distortion of what might have been realistically "beautiful," and so on.

But oddly enough most of what is generically labeled "abstractionism" is validly susceptible to this sort of criticism, especially in America. Regardless, most of us cannot distinguish between what is "garbage" and what is not.

An approach which would lead to evaluating this art validly is historical. And this is exemplified well in a work of Sarah Newmeyer entitled "Enjoying Modern Art," published in 1956.

The approach here is not theoretical, but rather the illustration of modern art in its development, and what is more important, modern art as communication.

The point in history from which she begins is the French Revolution, and its parallel figures in art, Jacques David and neo-classicism with its tight constrictions of form and emotion, then to Romanticism and Delacroix, ferreting out with great precision the influence he had on later movements. Daumier, Corot of the simple vision, the elongated El Greco, the realism of Courbet, the vital school of Impressionism, Picasso, Renoir, Monet, Cezanne, who defies any classification, the ballet of Degas, the agonizing pointillism of Seurat, Van Gogh and Expressionism, his tormented compatriot, Gauguin. And at last we have a meaning for the violent explosions that were to characterize the twentieth century. Some, more than others, but each of these contributed to the many and diverse streams of art in our century.

The influence of Cezanne on Picasso, incipient cubism and explicit cubism, may be cited as the one example which stands out above the rest. For germinal in cubism was the position that art need not be conformed to reality, and thus we have partial reason for the revolt in the extreme that typifies most of contemporary art. True, it is an extremely subjective position but one which is most natural to the assertion of man's individualism in our own time.

The loss of objective form, the explosions of color in Fauvism attested to this position that man was the curator of reality.

But this, as was said before, is not a book of theory. It is a skilled balance of art comment, which is never pedantic, and biography.

After all is said, Miss Newmeyer states that this, the middle of the twentieth century, marks the death of a great cycle of art that began with the cave man and is terminating with the wholly subjective and non-communicative offerings of today. Already evident is a new return to realism, to the mentality of the first fathers of art.

Miss Newmeyer says in the dedication, "This book is for intelligent people who have not the time—or perhaps the inclination—to make a study of modern art but would like to know what it's all about." This is to be taken literally, for it is true. It is, on the whole, an excellent study of the enigma of modern art and, though brief, is never shallow.

Soph Explains Voting Totals

Dear Editor,

We would like to point out the meaning of some of the election figures which were tossed about in the last issue of Stuff. It was declared that 187 of 256 sophomores voted on the first ballot for a percentage of 73.0 and that 212 voted in the final runoff or 82.6 per cent, still a very poor showing.

Now the sophomore class has the school's largest percentage of veterans, day-students and married students and they are listed among the 256 sophomores. Many of these, but by no means all, came out to increase the total vote on the last ballot. Moreover, there are 27 seminarians who are counted, but do not vote. By discounting the Xavier group alone, the percentage on the last ballot shoots to 92.5. Of the residents who are both academic and social sophomores, only one man didn't vote on the final ballot.

In other words, the sophomore class made a terrific showing at the polls and in one of the finest and most intense campaigns we have seen in two years at St. Joe's.

Sincerely,
The Boys of Second Floor Halas

Meanwhile, our best wishes for the future success of your program.

Sincerely,
Mary L. Johnson, chairman
Xavierite Department of Intercollegiate Relations

Council Critique

(Editor's Note: The following is the first of a proposed series of columns which will appear in Stuff during the 1959-60 school year. Its purpose is not to serve merely as a criticism of the Student Council or the activities it sponsors, nor is it to act as a sounding board for Council policies. Rather, its purpose is to attempt an explanation of problems brought up at the meeting as the columnist sees them. It must be remembered, however, that this is a column and the opinions are not necessarily the opinions of Stuff or the Council members.)

by Tom Cusick

The newly elected Council is faced with a huge deficit as this school year draws to a close. The cause for this deficit appears to be the same thorn in the side that impeded the work of previous Councils. Due to a small attendance, all of the "big" dances held on campus this year have lost money. For some unknown reason, the drawing power of these affairs seems to be almost nil. WHY?

From the records it doesn't appear that those who set up and worked on the dances "over invested" in them. Usually no more was spent on a dance than could normally be covered by the sale of tickets to a representative number of students. Let's take a look at one dance, for instance. Say the Mardi Gras.

The Mardi Gras was open to the entire student body. It was held on a not so favorable weekend, the first one after we returned at mid-semester. The cost of decorations was kept to a minimum, although it was by no means shoddy. Each ticket cost $4. There had been no major activities during January and there were to be no activities in the immediate future due to the start of Lent the following week. Nonetheless, out of a potential 900 students, 100 attended. WHY?

It was the same story at the Prom. One hundred and twenty-eight couples attended. At the Frosh-Soph Hop there were even less than 100. There were 200 at the Tower dance last fall but still that lost money. That big question still looms up. WHY?

From looking at the people that attended the dances, it is evident that it is usually the same ones all the time. But those attending amount to less than one-third of those eligible. Sure, some of it can be explained away by saying, "I just couldn't afford it." But can two-thirds of the student body say this. I doubt it. There must be more to it than that.

So again I ask—WHY? Maybe if some of this silent, non-participating two-thirds would begin to voice their opinions on how to improve the dances we might make some headway toward a solution. But until they do speak up . . .

The Stuff editors wish to express formal thanks to Brother Paul Werling, college mechanic, for his help in the publishing of the paper every two weeks. Bro. Paul has kindly offered his services in driving one of the college cars to and from the printer's shop at Oxford, Ind., 40 miles away, two times every time the paper came out. Again, we say thanks, Brother.

What, Me Worry?

"Mein Gut Grief" - The Life And Loves of M. Goldrick

by Greg Mahoney

And maybe even the luckless Charlie Brown is too tame to be considered in Mike's class. For, who else but Mike Goldrick could:

go 22 years without ever kissing a girl voluntarily . . . go to every high school function all four years and never dance once . . . play on an American Legion baseball team that finished third the year he played for them and then won the state championship the next year—when he was off the team . . . be pitching a no-hitter in 12" IM softball going into the last inning, then walk seven in a row, throw a wild pitch and finally lose 12-3?

And who else could play varsity baseball three years without winning a letter . . . wait until the first semester of his senior year at St. Joe to have a date, then spill a 7-7 on his date's brown suede purse (it was HER drink) and wipe it off on his brown suit . . . have a 131 IQ and yet not get higher than a "C" in his major field, English-Journalism . . . be the only upperclassman at St. Joe to be tossed in the pond by the frosh five time—on five consecutive days . . . go through four years of college without ever having to buy a bar of soap, razor blades or hair tonic (he steals them from the washrooms) . . . ?

Many people have had one or two of these things happen to them sometime in their lives, but Mike Goldrick seems to collect unfortunate incidents in mass numbers. To the best of Mike's knowledge, there is no ancient curse working itself out on him, nor can a black storm cloud of imminent doom be discerned floating over his head. Yet, it seems that whenever something weird or bizarre or mildly disastrous happens, Mike is always standing in the middle of it, smiling sheepishly.

Actually, Mike is a normal college man, red-blooded, God-fearing, draft detesting, and sometimes so ordinary on the surface that it's hard to believe that he has a life-long record of eccentricities and bad luck behind him. He dresses casually, collegiately, and conveniently. "I don't care for social conventions, such as wearing white shirts, when pink ones are available," remarks Mike.

Mike is an average student and a good athlete ("In baseball, I'm only poor field, mediocre hit," he admits modestly, but at least he's still on the team, has been the Pumas' lead-off man in a few games, and has participated in all the intramural sports). He watches "Maverick" like 93% of the people on Sunday nights, does not smoke, and drinks very socially.

He does not gamble ("I've always backed a loser . . . To my knowledge I've never won a bet, so I don't bet much. Gambling is alright for other people, but not for me—I just don't win").

Mike has all the normal pursuits of his generation except, well, except girls. He shies away from them as black cats shy away from him. He expends all his devotion and emotion on the other indoor and outdoor sports, though. "I believe I've had more fun playing sports than taking out a girl, and I'll argue that with anybody," states Mike proudly.

A man of Mike's checkered experiences cannot help but form some philosophy of life. "Man plans and God disbands—so why try?" is his basic premise. On contemporary life in general, he says: "I like it. I believe that the way society is set up now, it is possible for someone as inept as me to cast through 75 years still

On The Campus

Men and Issues

by Pat Lavery and Tom Page

Our interview for this last issue of Stuff is with Fr. Edward A. Maziarz, academic dean of St. Joseph's college. With many changes being made recently in courses and requirements, we felt it pertinent to speak with this member of the administration.

Question: Father, what are your major functions as dean of St. Joseph's college?

Fr. Maziarz: As dean of the college, I am concerned with all matters directly pertaining to the administration of academic affairs.

Question: Why have the requirements for entrance and graduation been raised?

Fr. Maziarz: In any realm of endeavor you try to better yourself. This is done in business, sports, etc. If you do not attempt to better yourself you become stagnant.

Question: Will the academic requirements be raised in the future?

Fr. Maziarz: This is hard for me to say because I do not make the decisions governing this. My position is similar to that of a business executive. While I might make suggestions to the faculty, it is the faculty who makes the final decisions as to what academic policies I administer.

Question: Do you think that the academic standards should be raised to even a higher level?

Fr. Maziarz: Yes.

Question: Academically, how does S.J.C. compare with other colleges?

Fr. Maziarz: In a survey of 60 leading colleges in the Middle West, S.J.C. rated near the top. In such categories as ratio of full time students to full time teachers, median salaries for teachers, average teaching load, number of doctor's degrees on the faculty, S.J.C. scored in the 80th percentile or higher.

Question: What, in your opinion, should be the major goal of a college student?

Fr. Maziarz: The student should attempt to gain as much knowledge as possible. This will make him a better man, citizen and Catholic. Also, it will probably be very profitable economically if the student attains this goal.

Question: Do you think that a person with a low IQ can become an outstanding scholar?

Fr. Maziarz: I don't believe that the IQ is a set thing. If a person has a strong desire to learn, in most instances, he can become an outstanding student, regardless of his IQ. Sometimes IQ is stressed too much.

Question: How does the current student body compare with the student body of 10 years ago?

Fr. Maziarz: The current students are of a better calibre. However, while the students of 10 years ago might not have been as intelligent as the current students, they worked harder.

Question: In closing, have you any advice to pass on to the students?

Fr. Maziarz: If a person is to be successful in anything, he must have some sort of a planned life. If a person has no plan of order, I don't see how he can succeed.

Mr. J. Phelps Delivers Talk About Politics

by Glenn Clausen

Mr. John M. Phelps, assistant professor of politics, gave the last history club lecture of the semester on "Political Science Today," Wednesday, May 13, in Merlini lounge.

The field of political science today is divided between the empirical school of political scientists, who place much trust in statistical analysis of political phenomena, and what might be termed the "traditionalist" school which draws its inspiration from the great political thinkers of the past including Plato, Aristotle, and St. Thomas Aquinas, Mr. Phelps explained. The empirical school in modern times is numerically superior, but the "traditionalists" have lately shown a renewed vitality.

Mr. Phelps agreed with the "traditionalists" that political science should be thought of as "a branch of ethics" and to study political science without considering problems of moral judgment, as many empiricists are led to do, holds dangerous implications for society.

"It might produce specialists who are anxious to see certain business and governmental institutions 'work' without an awareness of whether they were constituted on correct principles or were working for correct goals," he stated.

He also discussed the critical advantage the "traditionalists" possessed in being able to define the proper ends of the state. In reaffirming the traditionalists argument that the state was created for individuals, and not individuals for the state, Mr. Phelps explained that the state had no "personality" as such and could not be thought of as having "inalienable rights"—as if it were some personalized force above and beyond the common good.

Collegeville Confidential

by Tim J. Sullivan Jr.

It has become rather standard practice for this column to include, as part of the last issue of the year, a review of all the unusual or interesting happenings which took place during the two semesters which have just passed into oblivion, or history, or something on that order. This column will be no exception to the general rule, which, by the way, was just established last year.

Since in this unusual place in an unusual world, events happen in a certain series, beginning at the first and ending with the last, perhaps we had better conform, and proceed in like fashion. (For all you clods, this means we are going to start with the beginning of the year and go to the end.) Here goes:

The fly drowning contests in Gallagher . . . the hula-hoop craze which had guys getting them in the mail, and saw contests being held at some of the mixers . . . The "Dear John" letter, which ended up being printed in quite a few of our nation's college newspapers . . . The senior from Gallagher who fell off a bar stool and broke his toe . . . The rivers which flowed from many of the campus Johns for a time there . . . Bro. Larry's report card . . . Jim Rogers giving up drinking for Lent . . . Lash Lareau and his Bear jacket . . . Jack Byrnes learning to read . . . the bank girls and their grouchy attitude . . . Charlie Vaughan and his four girl friends . . . Washburn hall's crew sandbagging the dike beside the Iroquois . . . J. C. Christen's R.R. watch . . . The "Big Nose" club . . . Fr. Schaefer with a cut finger . . . Moose McNicholas playing Maverick all year . . . the Poetry club in Gallagher . . . the green ink used for the St. Pat's day issue . . . The poem, written by Harv. Hoffswell for the same issue . . . Regina, Regina, Regina, Regina . . . The St. Pat's day orgy in History 50 . . . Noll and Bennett after the St. Pat's day orgies in Kannes, South Side, North Side, and Wahls . . . the movies and the trouble the business office has had collecting the movie fee for this year . . . Paul Ross playing evangelist . . . Pat Goedert's comment about the campus food . . . the campus food . . . Tom DeMint . . . the Monon and all the guys who used to ride it walking or thumbing . . . the "dirty" book-of-the-month . . . the letter from he Lake County club to those going to the Prom picnic . . . and, many more, which we missed, forgot, lost, deleted, censored, or couldn't spell.

Eulogy to a Dying Year

Verily, the St. Joe Pumas have almost completed another year . . .

Another year of assignments, books, studying, term papers, and profs . . .

For the St. Joe Pumas are students, the very core of their existence . . .

Yea, the St. Joe Pumas are students in every sense of that shudder-provoking word . . .

For the St. Joe Pumas would rather drink than study, would rather go out with girls than study . . .

Would rather read . . . books than text books, would rather write letters than term papers . . .

Would rather visit the South Side than study, would rather go home than study . . .

Would rather sleep than study, would rather talk than study . . .

Would rather visit Kanne's than the library, would rather visit Chicago than the library . . .

For the St. Joe Pumas are students, in every sense of that shudder-provoking word . . .

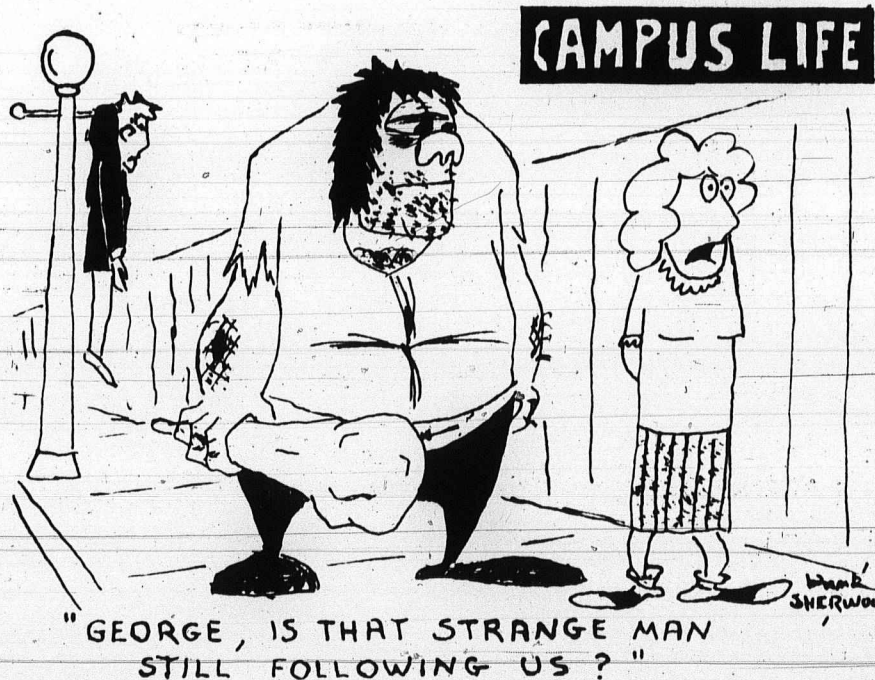

For the St. Joe Pumas are students, students, students . . . and don't you forget it!!!

Nationalism on the St. Joe Campus

As part of one of his courses in history, a St. Joe Puma had to write a paper on the following topic: Nationalism and its affect on inter-student relationships on the campus of St. Joseph's College, Rensselaer, Ind. Sound pretty silly? You should hear some of the other topics assigned around here. Anyhow, this student was nice enough to allow us to read the paper he finally came up with, and some of his conclusions were rather interesting. For example, Joe Gurgone, Tony Calderone and Jack "Benedict" Bellucci are the leading exponents of a campus-wide movement to free the campus from the control of the "damn Irish" politicians and put it into the hands of some responsible, intelligent Italians. As a counter-movement, some of the more prominent Irishmen have tried to form a St. Joe chapter of the I.R.A. and have stored arms and ammunition in a locked cupboard (always thought before to contain illicit and illegal fire-water for sale to irate Indians) of the Stuff office, officially qualifying that "rag" for the title of "Organ of Revolutionary Thought." Does this look to you as if perhaps there may be a revolution on campus?

Funny Sights and Sounds . . . There aren't any . . . So, it looks as if the Stuff editors will have to find something to fill in the rest of the space . . . but, since they are such a bunch of clods, it looks as if we will have to insert here some of the names of guys who have asked us to include their names in the column this year . . . Larry Kelly, Bob Decker, Ron Knoerzer, Tom Cusick, Don Buckley, Mark Doorley, and Tom Doherty, J. Goeldi, John Galvin, and Joe Lillich.

. . . No man is poor as long as he can still laugh . . .

Dr. Johnson Takes Pulse Of Thriving St. Joseph's

by Glenn Clausen

Dr. Cecil E. Johnson, M.O., College Physician, has been binding the wounds and healing the ills of St. Joseph's students for forty years now. What started out as a one year assignment in 1912 developed into a lifetime of dedication for the physician. A 40th anniversary banquet will be given in the doctor's honor by the administration of the school early next fall.

Born in the small town of McPaul, Iowa, Dr. Johnson has always had a soft spot in his heart for rural life and people. "In a small town, people are treated as human beings, rather than economic or social slaves," he states.

He attended school in Chicago and is a graduate of Lewis Institute and Northwestern university's medical school. After three years of internship at Michael Reese hospital in Chicago, during which time he devoted most of his attention to surgery, Dr. Johnson came to Rensselaer. At first he worked with Dr. Washburn at the school and gradually took over as the college physician when Dr. Washburn went into retirement.

In 1912 St. Joseph's consisted of the infirmary, the chapel, Gaspar hall, Drexel, and the Administration building. It was characterized by a strict academic and religious life, which would probably produce nervous breakdowns in most of us.

There were no homes north of the present grammar school on "53" and Dr. Johnson used to chug out to see his student patients in an open top Maxwell, resorting to horse and buggy when the roads were impassable.

The nationwide flu epidemic of 1919 laid practically all of the school on its back. Sick students filled every available cot on campus. The flu epidemic was followed in 1921 by a rash of scarlet fever. Today's students, according to Dr. Johnson, are by far better physical specimens than their predecessors, due mainly to improved medical procedures.

Dr. Johnson observed that it wasn't until recent years that you saw a girl around St. Joseph's. Things aren't as bad as we thought. The first female nurse was Miss Nellie Harris.

Dr. Johnson feels that today's students are better rounded than the earlier ones. "After all, school should be a place for full human development, not just book learning."

untouched by the harsh realities of life."

On women, a subject with which he admits, he is only remotely acquainted, Mike says: "Women are to be lavished, but not ravished."

On lovemaking, he blushes: "I've never, ah, really participated . . . What prohibits me is an overabiding fear of the opposite, ah, sex . . . Love-making doesn't really take guts, it takes initiative."

But on marriage, he affirms: "Anybody who gets married is a jerk. I think it's foolish for someone just out of college to get married when he still has four or five years ahead of him to establish a secure position. The right age for marriage is about 42, when everything is settled and there's nothing else to do."

Mike thinks that suicide is: " . . . and effective panacea for almost all problems—except death."

Mike comments on the draft: "I fail to see just how the national security would be benefited by my presence in the uniform of one of the Armed Forces. To the contrary, I can see where irreparable damage would be done."

He doesn't like to travel much. "Mine is a 'lazy-faire' policy," he yawns. "I'm mainly interested in just lying around the back yard, playing whiffle-ball."

As for the immediate future, beginning June 7, Mike says, "After I graduate, I want to get a teaching job for about four years to beat the draft. After that, who knows?"

Pumas Finish Strong; Beat Ball State Twice

by Ron Lawnczak

St. Joseph's concluded the 1959 baseball campaign on a happy note Monday afternoon on the St. Joe diamond by whipping the Ball State Cardinals in both ends of an ICC double-header, 4-3 and 2-0. In winning their sixth consecutive game, the Pumas finished the season with a mark of 7-8-2. The double victory also pushed the Pumas out of the Indiana Collegiate conference cellar and raised their conference mark to 3-6. Ball State ended their conference season with a 4-8 record.

Puma hurler, Ed Vrydolyak, was the whole show in the opener until the ninth inning. Up to that fatal inning he allowed no runs and only five hits and had driven home Bob Decker twice with singles to left. But in the ninth, an error and four walks allowed Ball State to knot the score. Grothouse replaced Vrydolyak and promptly sent the leading run across by hitting Mike Henderson with his first pitch. He struck out the next hitter but the damage appeared to be done. In the bottom of the ninth Jim Koehler brought a ray of hope to the Puma rooters by walking and stealing second. After a ground out, Bob Groneman, pinch hitting for Al Whitlow, lined a single to center sending Koehler home with a tying run. But the Pumas were still not satisfied. Ron Budzielek, running for Groneman, stole second and remained there as Bob Larear fanned. Bob Decker then tried his hand at being the hero and succeeded as he lined a 3-2 pitch into left-center driving home the winning run.

Roger Casterline, third Cardinal hurler, took the defeat while Greg Grothouse, who pitched to only two batters got credit for the victory, his second against no defeats in ICC play.

In the night cap, Bob Gallaher continued his red-hot pitching and stretched his streak of not allowing an earned run to 23 2/3 innings while in that same time, he has allowed only one unearned run. Gallaher, in winning his fourth game in five decisions, allowed only three scattered singles while striking out seven and walking only one. His opponent, Mike Casterline, who took both defeats, allowed nine hits while striking out two and walking no one before being relieved by Dick Beck in the fifth. The hitting stars for the Pumas in the night cap were Mike Goldrick with two for three, Ray Kuzniar with a long triple, and Bob Gallaher himself who singled and scored the first run of the game.

Centerfielder Jim Koehler eased Gallaher's job considerably with two sparkling defensive plays. In the second inning he robbed Cardinal Nat Pittman by making a spectacular shoe-string catch while running at top speed in short left-center. Again in the fourth he cut off a budding Ball State rally by throwing out Cardinal runner Dean Campbell by 10 feet when he attempted to go from first to third on a single to center.

Intramurals

by Mike Goldrick

A new inter-hall all-sports champion has been crowned. Succeeding last year's Noll hall as the top campus hall for intramural sports is Merlini hall. Led by their "Pumakittens" Merlini swept to league championships in football, basketball and softball. The boys of Merlini dominated the freshman intramurals.

This is the final column for this writer in a series of over forty columns spread over a span of three years. During that time the intramural program has come into its own here at St. Joe. The competition between classes and halls has developed into a keen, spirited contest. It is now a rule of thumb that each class have a team name of its own which it carries through all the sports. This year the Pumakittens came out of the freshman class. The sophomores have their Guzzlers, the Juniors have their Overtakers, and the Seniors have their 7-7's. The Pumakittens have established a winning habit, so no doubt the name will carry over to next year.

The 7-7's will leave St. Joe with two league championships and two school championships in football, four league championships and three school championships in basketball and two league championships in softball. However, they only take away one title when they graduate and that will be the football championship.

The juniors now own two titles, in basketball and softball, and they will have to defend them next year.

Looking to next year I'd like to make a few predictions. In football, next year's juniors are the team to beat. In basketball, the returning champs have to be the favorites; their only loss this year was to the 7-7's, and they avenged that one. In softball, next year's juniors appear to have the talent to win it. The Pumakittens will have it rough next year when they move into upper-class competition, so I don't pick them for any championship at all. An old adage has developed in the past years in St. Joe intramurals and it is "You can't beat the juniors." I think next year it will be substantiated once more.

So to wind it up, congratulations to: the 7-7's for football, the Overtakers for basketball, the Gazelles for volleyball, the Klods for softball (12"), and the Halas Horsemen for softball (16"). And finally to the boys from Merlini for all sports.

Puma Putters Finish Strong

St. Joe's golf team closed out their most successful season in the past five years last Saturday when the Puma linksmen outpointed visiting DePauw, 12-3. Jim Klingele paced St. Joe with a 79 total and three points. Dick Etter also scored three points by firing an 80. Denny Herschberger picked up two points with an 80; Dick Nietzel got two and one-half points with an 81; and Jack Clifford added one and one-half points with his 83.

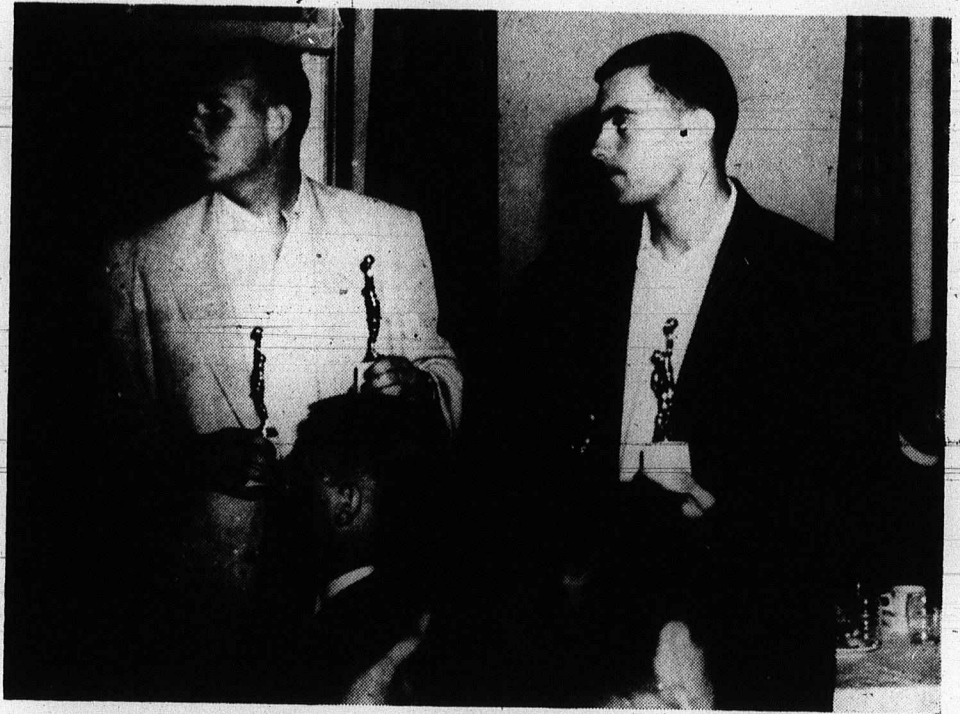

Thus, the Joemen finished the season in fourth place in the ICC for their most successful year under Fr. Clement Kuhns, their coach for the past five years. After getting off to a bad start by losing their first five matches, they came roaring back to take five of their last six for a season mark of 5-6.

The Puma golfers also took fourth place in the Little State Meet in Indianapolis. Butler, Valpo and Ball State were the only teams to defeat St. Joe in this tournament in which 19 small Indiana colleges participated, including ICC, Hoosier Conference and independent teams. In the meet, four Joemen racked up a total of 630 for 36 holes.

Jack Clifford of St. Joe was the medalist among NAIA teams (those from the Hoosier Conference, Indiana State, Ball State and St. Joe) with a total of 163. This makes him eligible for the NAIA tournament which will be played at Quincy college in June. He would be a representative of District 21.

Frs. Maziarz, Pax Fill Board of Control Posts

Frs. Edward A. Maziarz, Academic Dean, and Walter Pax have been appointed to fill the vacancies on the college Board of Control left when Frs. Raphael H. Gross and Edmund E. Ryan were elected to the C.P.P.S. Provincial's Council in April.

As members of the Board of Control, Frs. Maziarz and Pax will be concerned with making the final decisions of the college in its relations as a legal corporation. Working under Board president, the Very Rev. John E. Byrne, C.P.P.S., provincial of the Society of the Most Precious Blood, the priests are part of a seven man board.

Fr. Maziarz has been academic dean of the college for four years. He came to St. Joseph's in 1942 after receiving his M.A. degree in philosophy from the Catholic University of America. Since then he has received his Ph.D. from the University of Ottawa, studied at the University of Michigan and the University of Virginia. This summer he will study under a National Science Foundation Fellowship at American university.

Fr. Pax, the February baccalaureate speaker at St. Joe, was academic dean of the college from 1948-55. He received an M.A. in philosophy in 1930 and a Ph.D. in education in 1937, both from the Catholic University. After serving as academic dean here he was appointed chairman of the school of education at DePaul. Currently Fr. Pax is Director of Education for the Society of the Most Precious Blood.

From the time of senior graduation until the start of the first semester of the 1959-60 school year, all residence halls will be closed to the students and friends of St. Joseph's. Those students wishing to visit the halls during the summer months may do so only with the permission of Father Baird, the director of summer events. This regulation is enforced to prevent embarrassment to visitors and guests of the college who will be living in the halls at various times during the summer.

VA Announces Counseling Help For Veterans

All students presently in training under Public Law 550, the Korean Veterans Bill, or Public Law 634, the War Orphans Bill for children of deceased veterans, might well be considered whether they need further counseling to help them evaluate their present program.

All such students who are interested in bringing their work up to fully satisfactory status or in planning their educational goal would do well to request counseling now so that they can be given an appointment during the summer months. This action on their part, if taken now, should insure their being ready to continue training in September, according to Mr. A. J. Bochicchio, Manager of the Indianapolis Regional Office, Veterans Administration.

All eligible individuals who are not making satisfactory progress are required under Public Law 550 to be counseled before re-entrance into any program; and any student under Public Law 550 or Public Law 634 who still has eligibility may be afforded counseling, if he feels this would be of help to him in setting or revising his educational goals.

To request counseling services, simply obtain a VA application form from the veterans' representative here at the school; or, address a letter direct to the Regional Office, Indianapolis, Indiana.

SJ Servers' Day Moved to June 15

Servers' Day, which was to be held on the St. Joe campus, Tuesday, May 23, has been postponed because of the inconvenience of the date for the grade school servers who were to attend. Some of the schools in the surrounding communities are having final tests at this time and couldn't make it on the proposed date. The day has been re-scheduled for June 15 and will be run by the priests and brothers of the college.

College Adopts New Program Of Honors; All Are Eligible

One of the first orders of business passed by the newly completed college Board of Control is the adoption of a new all-college honors program in addition to the present honors program sponsored by the individual departments.

The purpose of the new program is to enable exceptional students to broaden and deepen their knowledge by enrolling in courses offered by the honors department.

Students will be invited to enter this program through the office of the academic dean. These students will be assigned to a special honors committee which will assist them in arranging their participation in the program. Students will become eligible for this program at the close of their freshman year.

In order to qualify for all-college honors, students must have the required cumulative index for honors and must complete a minimum of five hours honors department courses from at least three different departments. Students in this program will be able to substitute these courses for the graduation requirement of 12 hours in a minor.

Students on the program may qualify for all-college honors without completing requirements for departmental honors. Also to be established will be an honors department which will consist of those on the committee on honors and the courses in this all-college honors program will be listed alphabetically as a separate department in the college catalogue.

The committees also announced that for the present, two types of honors will be recognized. The present honors program will remain much as it is at present and is to be controlled by the department. Students qualifying for graduation with honors will fulfill requirements as they do now.

This program was set up and announced to the faculty at the May 21 faculty meeting. It has been approved by the faculty committee on honors programs and the committee on curriculum and educational policy.

SJ To Host 1500 Guests This Summer

This summer, St. Joseph's college will be host to approximately 1,500 guests. Fr. Richard Baird, director of summer events, recently announced that the campus will be the scene of various conventions and retreats in addition to the annual summer classes beginning June 22 and lasting to August 1.

Immediately after graduation June 7, 75 priests of the Lafayette diocese will open the summer program with a retreat from June 7 to 11. The C.P.P.S. Junior Clergy will follow with two study weeks, one from June 8 to 12, and the other from June 12 to July 1. Also during this time, there will be a retreat for 55 members of Alcoholics Anonymous June 12 to 14, and a field day for the members of the Lafayette C.Y.O. on June 14.

June 15 to 19, and 22 to 26, a retreat for the diocesan priests of Gary will be held at St. Joseph's. Also expected are two hundred parents and friends of the seminarians for the Xavier Parents Day, June 20-21.

The Young Christian Workers (YCW) will hold a National Convention at St. Joseph's August 8 for 60 officers, and continue with a YCW Study Week, Aug. 9 to 15 for 325 workers. The Young Christian Students National Study Week for 325 high school students will be held Aug. 17 to 21. The summer schedule will end Aug. 27, with the closing of the Student Lay Apostolate Conference (SLA), Aug. 24 to 27. Thirty members are expected.

New Extension Head Is Named

Fr. Henry J. Martin has been appointed director of the St. Joseph's college Calumet Center in Hammond, Ind. He will succeed Fr. James I. Birkley who has recently resigned the post. The change will take effect next month.

Under Fr. Birkley since 1952, the Calumet Center has grown from 10 courses and 125 students eight years ago to its present average of some 25 courses and approximately 500 students per semester.

Fr. Birkley, a native of Cleveland, O., was ordained in 1943 and did parish work in Ohio for three years before coming to St. Joe to teach. He received his master's degree in English from the University of Notre Dame in 1951. His next appointment has not yet been announced.

Fr. Martin holds master's and doctor's degrees in education from Indiana university. A native of St. Louis, Mo., he was ordained in 1940 and taught for 11 years before being named the first director of the Calumet Center in 1951. He returned to St. Joe's in 1952 when Fr. Birkley took over the Calumet extension. Fr. Martin was assigned to missionary work in 1955, the post he presently holds, with headquarters at St. Joe.

Club News

The Lake County club has scheduled two dances for the coming summer vacation, both of which will be held at the Marquette Park pavillion. The first dance will take place on Sunday night, June 28, with the "Cavaliers" providing the music. Sunday, Aug. 2, is the date of the second dance.

Plans were also made at the last meeting for a beach party to be held at Wells Street beach in Gary on Saturday night, June 14. The installation of new officers also took place at this meeting.

The Chicago club held elections for next year's officers at its May 4th meeting. John Evans was elected president, Bill Miller vice-president, and Ed Massura secretary-treasurer. The outgoing officers were Ray Kuzniar, president, Ed Vrdolyak, vice-president, and Jim Gagliano, secretary-treasurer.

A summer dance is in the planning stage and it will probably be held on July 18 or 25. Postcards will be mailed to the members during the summer notifying them of the date, time and place.

The Motor City club laid plans at its last meeting for three summer activities, including two dances and a picnic. Time and place of these activities will be announced later.

Fr. Ernest A. Lucas has resigned his office as moderator of the club. He was forced to do this for reasons of poor health. As yet, no new moderator has been named to succeed Fr. Lucas.

The Geology club finished the semester's activities with a successful dinner meeting at Kanne's restaurant in Rensselaer. New officers were installed at this last meeting and talks were given by three faculty members, Mr. Michael Davis, Fr. Carl Nieset, and Fr. Donald Ballman.

Preparations are being made for the summer field course. Eight St. Joseph's students are taking the six weeks' course to be held at Silver City, New Mexico, from June 8 to July 26. Thirteen students from other Catholic colleges are also taking the course, bringing the group total to 21 members.

The Fort Wayne club elected officers for next year at its meeting held last Wednesday. Taking over the new positions are Connor Loesch, president; Dave Cook, vice-president; Jerry Mauch, secretary; and Joe Breman, treasurer.

At the club's annual banquet held at Kanne's restaurant on Monday, plans for the summer were announced. Around the latter part of July the club will sponsor a summer dance and all Fort Wayne college students will be invited.

Before school begins next fall on the St. Joe campus, the club plans to hold a college program at the Catholic high school in the city to acquaint prospective students with St. Joe and give them an informal briefing on what college life is like.
